It is not difficult to find the Brazilian population and culture within Barcelona, especially on the 4th of September, also known as the Dia de Brasil. This is the day when you can see Brazilian live performances on stage all day long and really connect with this Latino-American culture eating Brazilian food, drinking Caipirinhas and meet local people.

This event, that started no less than three year ago, aims at supporting the international imagine of Brasil as a touristic attraction and facilitate international business. It also promotes the social cohesion and integration of the Brazilian community within Barcelona. This one day long festival is free and organized by Diversia Company. This group was created in 2006 ad exclusively aims at promoting cultural diversity in Spain and promote project that will hep the Brazilian population to integrate within the Spanish community.
